This new discipline highlights the clear partnership between horse and rider; athleticism, collection, and versatility, including a functionality phase (similar to Doma or functionality test), an obstacle phase (in which horse and rider negotiate trail type obstacles, with an emphasis on precision and harmony) and a speed phase (in which horse and rider are timed through the obstacle phase). There are levels and divisions for everyone from leadline to advanced. Visit www.workingequitationusa.com for information. Both National Celebration and IALHA Nationals will feature Working Equitation classes in 2011.

Learn the Philosophy of Riding in Lightness by Manuel Trigo

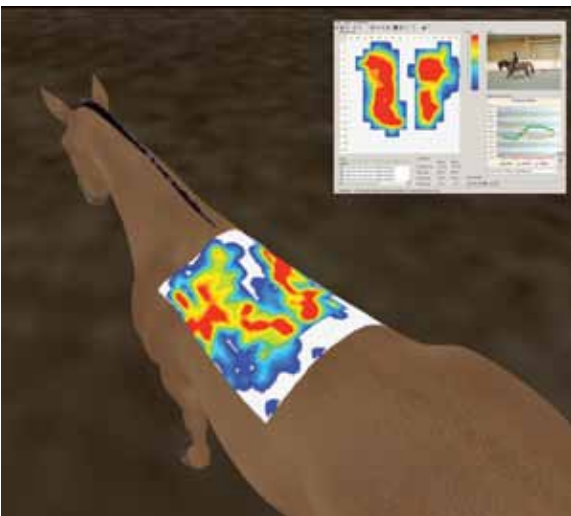

Manuel Trigo originally from Badajoz, Spain, lives in Costa Rica with his wife Dominique and two children. Owners of El-Caballo Rey, a dinner theatre and training facility, Manuel trains, teaches, and performs Spanish Riding at the High School Level (Alta Escuela) and Doma Vaquera. Fluent in Spanish, French, and English, Manuel's philosophy is taken directly from the French classical Masters - LIGHTNESS. Manuel trains out of Casa Serena in Franktown, Colorado.

The Lightness Tournament is a venue to reward the riders efforts in training with the Philosophy of Lightness. The Tournament is a series of tests where you and your horse will perform movements at different levels where lightness is the goal and not the scores. The different levels are freestyle, ridden to music, and are designed to show where you are as a team in your quest for lightness and to hone your skills to move to the next level. You do not ride to get a score but to develop mastery at each level so that riding in lightness becomes second nature. In this clinic Manuel Trigo will explain the philosophy of riding in lightness, the philosophy and rules of the lightness tournament, what the judges will be expecting and some of the tests of different levels. The Foundation is considering hosting a Lightness Tournament during the 2012 National Celebration. Horses and riders have to be extremely light, balanced and collected, showing the P.R.E. in his best condition. Lightness tournaments will be open to any breed and any rider's level.
